

Has anyone ever thought about why people become socialpaths? Not always from faulty wiring in their brain. It has a direct cause from how they are treated in life in general. People are the most vicious mammal God has made. What made those two boys at Columbine High in Colorado? It was the constant tormenting that they received from fellow students. Thus, MASSIVE MURDER RAMPAGE.

People treat me like that on a daily basis due to my God-given gift of Epilepsy. Due to this, I have slipped into a comatose condition of no longer talking to people face to face. Irregardless of every angle I have tried, people steer clear because I am epileptic.

To this day, I have yet to ever heard of anyone trying the experiment of loneliness. The rules are extremely simple.

- 1) You are to tell every family member from sibling to parents to grandparents to completely ignore you for at least 1 year.
- 2) Same would go with "ANY" friends you have. They are to have no contact with you.
- 3) If you are employed, there is to be absolutely NO contact with you unless it's business.

You are only allowed 1 person in your life. Basically you are putting yourself into isolation. As society did to me. To think that I have had the same main email address ever since the internet came into existence and the email list only contains "1" real friend. That is Reverend Laura Neff. The rest of the 200 listed in the email list is those of Corporate CEO's who I let know when there's an employee treating a customer wrongly.

I dare anyone to step up and tell me why you never ever wanted to give me a fair shake in friendship. Laura can attest to what she has learned over the years from me alone. We even met twice in person and I spent a month with her family doing major yard debris clean-up.
